AND SOME THINGS AREN'T NOTICED UNTIL THEY'RE GONE.

Like clean streets and sidewalks. Or the funding that maintains weekly trash pickup.

Let's face it, the City of Columbus spends millions of dollars each year all sorts of basic neighborhood services that we often take for granted - services that are now in jeopardy:

- Regular trash pickup
- Resources for code enforcement and upkeep of vacant homes
- Graffiti removal
- Open, accessible recreation centers
- Well-maintained parks
- Public health centers and virus-containment services

Columbus is at a crossroads. The nation's faltering economy has hit Columbus hard, and City leaders have slashed budgets and made deep cuts to make ends meet. Now, our future is in our hands. Vote to maintain our great quality of life by protecting the essential city services that help make Columbus a great place to live.
